

ABSTRACT

[0056] A method of fabricating a dual damascene interconnect structure uses a very high frequency high-density plasma and selectively controlled substrate bias for in-situ etching a trench above a via hole of the interconnect structure and a barrier layer between the via hole and underlying conductive layer.